OLD MASTERS

I think that I shall never see
A poem lovely as a tree.

A tree whose hungry mouth is pressed
Against the earth's sweet flowing breast;

A tree that looks at God all day
And lifts her leafy arms to pray;

A tree that makes a summer wear
A nest of robins in her hair;

Upon whose bosom snow has lain;
Who intimately lives with rain.

Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree.

—Joyce Kilmer: "Trees."

LUNCHEON—Savoury carrots, lettuce sandwiches, apple snow, crisp cookies, milk tea.
DINNER—Roast filet of mutton, boiled rice, hot French slaw, cream and orange salad, Boston cream pie, whole wheat bread, milk, coffee.

Savoury Carrots
Two Bermuda onions, 3 thin slices each, 3 large cooked carrots, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup stock, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 4 tablespoons grated cheese.

Cut bacon in small pieces and cook over a slow fire until fat is well tried out. Peel onions and cut in thin slices. Add to bacon fat and cook until a golden brown. Add carrots cut in thin slices after boiling. Brown carrots on both sides. Remove carrots and onions to a hot vegetable dish. Stir flour into bacon fat, cooking and stirring until perfectly smooth. Add pepper and stir in stock.

Bring to the boiling point, stirring constantly. Pour over vegetables, sprinkle with cheese and serve.
The dish can be put under a gas broiler long enough to lightly brown and melt the cheese before sending to the table.

Domestic Science Classes Guests of I. N. U. Women

The Domestic Science Class of the Dixon High Schools were the guests of the women employees of the Illinois Northern Utilities Company, at their regular monthly meeting Friday, April 15th. The meeting was called at 10 a. m. in the Assembly Room of the Dixon office building and was in charge of Miss Eva Peterson. The guests included Miss Clara White, Mrs. Alice Bort, and Miss Jessie M. Cox, Domestic Science instructor of the Dixon schools; Miss Edna Wellman of Chicago, Chairman of the Women's Committee, Public Service Company of Northern Illinois; and Mrs. David Braman of Amboy, Lee County Chairman, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs.

In the absence of Mr. E. D. Alexander, Mr. Robert Hallenberg, Director of Public Relations, extended greetings and spoke briefly of the work of the women employees and the public's interest in their activities. The thought is to acquaint the women with the history, policies, services, and economies of the Company; in other words, the acquisition of knowledge that will help them become better utility representatives and that will help secure and maintain public good will.

The oven meal, prepared and cooked by Miss Helen Winger in connection with her talk, was served at the noon hour and included Creole meat loaf, escalloped potatoes and escalloped corn. In addition, there was tomato jelly salad and ice box cake. Her talk covered the construction and use of a gas range and oven heat regulator, and demonstrated the economies effected by care and thought in planning a meal. The recipes which were distributed, carried the suggestion, "save fuel and cook three foods for the cost of cooking one by using triple pans all over one burner."

"How to judge an electric range, cooking rates, and special wiring for electric ranges" was the subject of a talk by Miss Marcela Bremer, and was followed by a most interesting discussion of "Food Values and Their Relation to Growth and Development" by Miss Clara White, Domestic Science instructor of the South Side High School. Miss White also stressed the importance of well-balanced meals and the planning of menus.

A sketch entitled "Before and After" was cleverly given by Miss Lola Fischer and Miss Lucile Stauffer, and showed the new office girl before and after attending one of the Women's Committee Meetings. Miss Milla Wahnke discussed the subject "Our Company and the Community."

The text of a current topic by Miss Anna Wood was "Girls, marry a physician if you want to assure yourself of plenty of electrical servants to do your housework." Figures recently compiled on the comparative number of electrical household appliances in the homes of physicians and in the homes of those not connected with the medical profession, show that physicians have four times as many electrical appliances of all kinds in their homes as other average householders. Physicians are best acquainted with the human body and with the things that destroy or preserve it. They know that housework done in the old way shortens the life and impairs the health of women. Hence they employ electrical labor-saving devices as preventives against break-down and as lengtheners of lives of their wives.

Following a brief review of the work of the Women's Committee of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois by Miss Edna Wellman, Miss Maryann Gardner and Miss Leona Underwood demonstrated the "Prone Pressure Method of Resuscitation." They were assisted by Miss Edna Decker who explained the method.

After remarks by Miss Cox, Mrs. Bort, Mrs. Braman, and Vice-President, E. D. Alexander, the meeting was adjourned and dinner was served, the Dixon women as hostesses to fifty-three guests.

D. A. R. Stands For "Adequate Preparedness"

Washington, April 18.—(AP)—A call to American womanhood to stand for "adequate preparedness" was sounded today at the opening of the 36th congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution by Mrs. A. J. Brosseau, president general, and Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, honorary president general.

Mrs. Brosseau coupled her plea for preparedness of "the kind that defends only and does not propose war" with an appeal to women to take renewed interest in social and political problems.

The position of the United States cannot be maintained "in the big parade of life," she said, unless it is prepared as well as any other nation to defend itself.

Mrs. Cook said that at the present "surely even the most misguided of the pacifist clan must be realizing the need for adequate preparedness."

Eleanor Entertained On Her Birthday

Eleanor Joseph entertained ten little friends with a theater party in honor of her tenth birthday anniversary. Afterwards an ice cream parlor was visited and refreshments were enjoyed. Those present were: Gertrude Oakley, Margaret McDougal, Dorothy Thompson, Marcela Burnmeister, Dorothy Harvey, Helen Reynolds, Emily Thompson, Dorothy Baker and Reta Logan. A very happy time was experienced by all the little friends who remembered Eleanor with pretty gifts for her birthday.

GREAT BENEFITS OF SCHOOL WERE REVIEWED FRIDAY

Closing Session Free Cooking School Was Well Attended

BACHELOR'S CAKE

The Mother Cake Recipe (See Reference Recipe)
1 cup raisins
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ground cloves
1/2 cup mixed nuts

To the Mother Cake recipe add the flour, raisins and floured nuts and sift in the spices with flour. Bake in layers in hot oven at 375 degrees F.

SWEETHEART FILLING

1 1/2 cups sugar
3/4 cup water
6 egg yolks
2 teaspoons vanilla
2 tablespoons cornstarch

Boil the sugar and water to 242 degrees F. Beat the egg yolk and add to them the cornstarch. Then beat in the syrup and cook until the mixture comes to a boil. Cream the butter and stir it in and also add the vanilla. Set away to chill, then spread on the cake.

MARSHMALLOW ICING

2 cups XXXX icing sugar
1/2 cup marshmallow cream
Cream or evaporated milk
Almond flavoring

When the sugar is sifted, add enough cream to make the icing ready for the spreading. Stir in the marshmallow cream. Add the flavoring and spread on the cake. Decorate with a sprinkle of cinnamon or chopped nut meats.

HEAVENLY PIE

Pie Crust No. 1
2 cups flour
1 cup shortening
1/2 teaspoon salt

Sift the flour and salt together. Mix in the shortening with the tips of the fingers or cut it in and just enough water to hold the ingredients together.

Pie Crust No. 2

3/4 cups flour
1 cup shortening
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 cup cream
1 teaspoon salt

Sift the flour, baking powder and salt together twice. Work in the shortening. Add enough cream to hold ingredients well together. Chill before using.

FILLING

2 ripe bananas
2 cups sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 egg whites
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
1/4 teaspoon vanilla

1 cup cream
Nuts and jelly.
Mash the bananas through a sieve or potato ricer. Add the sugar, salt and flavorings. Beat the whites until stiff. Then carefully fold them into the other mixture. Set away to chill. Line the pie plate with pastry and bake at 300 degrees F. for 12 minutes. Fill the pie plate with the mixture and bake again for 30 minutes at 375 degrees F. Garnish with the whipped cream, jelly and nuts when chilled.

REFERENCE RECIPES

BAKING POWDER BISCUITS

Measure the flour, baking powder and salt into the sifter and sift three times. Add the shortening and work it in with the tips of the fingers (if oiled or cut it in). When the mixture looks mealy gradually cut in it the liquid with a knife, adding enough to make a soft dough. Turn out on a slightly floured board and roll or pat out one inch thick. Cut into biscuits, dipping the cutter each time in flour. Brush over the top with milk, water or melted shortening. Bake in a quick oven at 450 degrees F. for 20 minutes.

THE MOTHER CAKE

1/2 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cups flour

2 teaspoons baking powder
Cream the shortening. Beat in the sugar and egg yolks. Add the milk and vanilla and stir well. Sift together three times the salt, flour and baking powder. Add these to the mixture. When well blended fold in the beaten whites. Bake in a moderate oven at 350 degrees F. for 30 minutes for layer cake or 45 minutes for loaf cake.

At the close of the session Miss Ferguson was besieged with women anxious to learn when she would return. They also piled her with final questions and wrote the answers on pads but ever kept asking the date of her return to Dixon.

The universal comment was that never before had they learned so many interesting things about the bachelors and what they could do to make more tempting dishes for their families.

HEROES OF LEGEND.

A few days ago, in the city of Tampa, Fla., a number of old men in gray uniforms gathered for a convention and a parade. The city decked itself with flags and bunting, and did everything a city can do to make these men welcome.

The visitors were members of the United Confederate Veterans; men who had worn the gray and followed the Stars and Bars in the Civil War.

Like the G. A. R., the numbers of this organization are dwindling. Each year there are fewer to convene; in the course of a very few years the last Confederate veteran, like the last Union veteran, will have gone on. Even today the ranks are very thin.

Yet there is something highly impressive, to a thoughtful man, about that gathering in Tampa. The organization that convened there did not consist merely of as mall group of bent, aging men; nor did the homage that Tampa paid these men come simply because they were brave men who had, in time past, risked all for their beliefs.

For the veterans who marched down Tampa's streets did not march alone. Dim, shadowy figures strode before and after them; long-furled battle flags waved at their van; the echoes of ancient bugles rang clear in the air as they passed. Legendary heroes, gigantic and commanding, moved with them, unseen but felt by all the multitude.

The bitterness of the Civil War has passed away. The years have erased the scars and burns that it left. What remains to us seems epic and of legend; great poems of heroism and sacrifice, written in blood over 60 years ago so that we might have heroes and ideals.

The United Confederate Veterans are one of the repositories of these great tales—the other repository, of course, being the G. A. R. And that is why, though their numbers shrink, these gray-uniformed men bulk larger than ever. The Civil War was a war of heroes; these are the remaining men of a magnificent tradition, the last survivors of a battle of giants.

They were present at the far-off, legendary wars of history; and so we honor them as, once more before the last time, they pass in review.

DROPPING ANOTHER CUSTOM.

When Charles Dickens visited America a little less than 100 years ago, one of the things that impressed him most was the prevalence of the great American habit of chewing tobacco. He complained bitterly that in the best hotels, on steamers, in courtrooms—everywhere—the habit was indulged in freely; and the results, as can be imagined, he found rather unsanitary.

This time-honored habit must be vanishing. At any rate, the Pullman company announces that chewing tobacco is used so little now that ornate cuspidors will vanish from Pullman cars. They aren't needed any more.

ANOTHER ITEM.

Anne Parrish, novelist, returning from a tour of South America, reports that the "jazz age" is beginning to spread to Brazil and Argentina.

The old customs still prevail, she says, but slowly they are breaking down. Girls are smoking, chaperones are being ignored—and in a few years South American young people, hitherto so meticulous in their deportment, will be much like our own youngsters.

It's the influence of the United States that is doing it. We might ask ourselves if that won't be a terrific thing for the already strained friendship of South America for this country.

TELL IT TO THE DEBATERS.

Now that the debaters have settled the question about whether dandelions should be picked for anything besides greens, a few other super-issues have cropped up for the arguers to wipe out. . . . A debate ought to be held to decide who is the better citizen, the man who can drink 36 glasses of milk or the one who can chew 100 sticks of gum at once. . . . Another moot question is step-ins for men. One university student who stepped out in a pair was so stepped on that he felt like the threshold of a padlocked New York night club. . . . The girls, to be sure, have settled the issue about how long a dress should be. They ended the controversy by taking it up recently.

London is observing the 100th anniversary of the invention of the match. Mothers were making them long before that.

Healthful exercise is what a man gets on the golf course which he can't possibly obtain by beating a carpet.

New York is a place where a man from Peoria goes to carry a cane.

Today's definition: radio commission—a group of men who transfer the growl from the air to the broadcasters.

THE TINYMITES
STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

The Hot Cross Bun man went away and all the lunch began to play. They found a monstrous hanging swing, that dropped down from a tree. "Oh, look!" said Clowdy, "let's all swing. I'll show you how to work that thing. I'll give you all a ride, and then, you do the same for me."

The Tines thought that plan was fine, and soon they formed a happy line, and each took turns at swinging high, and sailing through the air. When Clowdy stood on the seat, which Clowdy thought quite indiscreet, wee Clowdy yelled, "You'd best sit down. You'll all right out of there."

When all the rest of them had tried the wondrous swing, and had their ride, they laughed to watch old Clowdy as he jumped upon the board. "Now, go ahead," he cried aloud, and he was pushed by all the crowd. "Wouldn't you almost scare you if you knew how high he soared."

And then, with very clever bound, the rider jumped down to the ground. "I think we'd best find shelter," he exclaimed to all the rest. "It feels just like it's going to rain." And so they all looked round in vain. They knew that they would all get soaked, the way that they were dressed.

Said Clowdy, "What's that over there? A humbershoot? Well, I declare. Say, if there's room for all of us, that sure will bring me joy."

The black umbrella looked so big, the Tines almost danced a jig. And when they peeked beneath the thing, they found a little boy. "Here, you can have this humbershoot," the wee lad said. "I'm going to school. I've asked the rain to go away, but it has done its good. And as he disappeared from sight, the rain came down with all its might, and all the Tines huddled up under the umbrella.

(The Tynesites have some tea, in the next story.)

SAINT and SINNER

After Judge Grimshaw had sternly admonished Cherry on the etiquette of a defendant on trial for her life, Banning was allowed to proceed with his examination of the witness, Flo Ripley.

"Describe the scene which you witnessed in the cafe which you have designated as 'Tony's' speakeasy," Banning instructed his witness.

"Cherry and I had a big bottle of red wine on the table between them," Flo went on, with a glance of black hatred toward Cherry, who had dared to call her a liar in the courtroom. "Tony makes you drink the red ink."

"Red ink?" Banning inquired with a smile. "Red wine," Flo amended with a toss of her head. "Anyway, he makes you drink it out of teacups, and I seen Cherry drinking, and Chris and she toasted each other, and I seen Chris lean over and kiss Cherry on the tip of her nose."

A ripple of delighted laughter interrupted the witness and drew down the ire of the judge, but he did not carry out his threat to clear the courtroom of spectators.

When Banning dismissed the witness, Flo Ripley said:

Let your own week's washing decide

Phone for a free Maytag trial in your home.

No need to inconvenience yourself by a trip down town. The same courteous Maytag salesman who would wait upon you at the Maytag store, will bring a Maytag to your home, do your week's washing, and demonstrate every feature for you—entirely without obligation to buy. The Maytag "must sell itself."

Its performance—not our words—must convince you of its value to you. Your own washing—the speed and thoroughness with which the Maytag does your washing—must decide.

No Hand-Rubbing

See the Maytag! Test it in the comfort of your own kitchen.

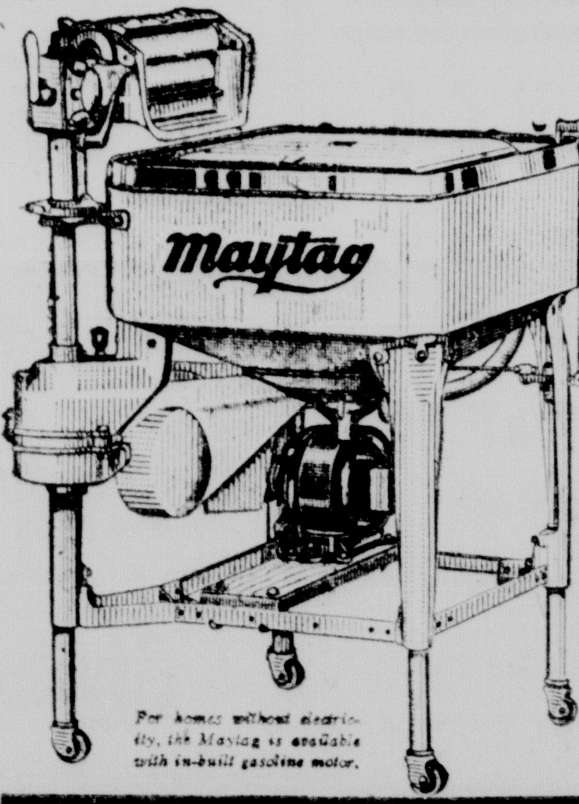

See it wash big tubfuls of clothes in 3 to 7 minutes—rag rugs, blankets, quilts in 10 minutes—50 pounds of clothes (dry weight) in an hour! See the foaming Maytag water-action wash all garments—even cuffs and collars—absolutely clean without hand-rubbing!

Many Exclusive Features

See the 7 position automatic wringer that swings to the water's edge—the adjustable legs that raise or lower the tub to your height—the heat-retaining cast-aluminum tub that is all washing space—that holds more clothes than other washers, and that can not rust, dent, split or lose its shape. Phone today. Remember there is no obligation. The Maytag must sell itself—or don't keep it.

What Every Girl Should Know

by GISA PRUCHONE

Copyright, 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW," with Patsy Ruth Miller, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Sullivan—slender, beautiful, red-headed—is the meteor of the Garden City tennis tournament. A poetical, queerly spiritual girl is Mary, despite her physical prowess. She has grown up with tennis balls. Her mother died leaving them for a living, that Mary might be a lady. Her spirit lives on in Mary. Mary's impish brother, Robert, gets her acquainted with Wally Mason, a young man who has watched the matches. Wally thinks Mary's goddess walk is due to tennis; but Mary, who habitually pretends to talk to her dead mother, knows who set her feet on mountain tops!

CHAPTER I—Continued

Life pounces on you, Mary, while you are unaware, and when you awake, lo, you have a strange bed-fellow.

"Not me! Not with me it won't! I shall be ever ahead—feet. I shall be quicksilver. Life is never quicksilver. Life is sudden. I will walk the mountain tops with the clouds. I will, mother!"

Life was simple now. So much more than it had ever been. Mary resolved to walk the high places, and her steadfast soul assured her that she could. Alone and free, swinging easily with no encumbrances. Life was simple now. There had been a time when she was weighted down to earth. The sudden mass of her mother, from whom life had been drained. It who couldn't see behind the sea-green eyes, and the red-gold hair that swung against her cheeks as she walked, and the firm little red mouth. Tennis for those who trod the earth.

"Very kind of you to walk home with us, Mr. Mason." Young Bob, beaming. "Very kind of you indeed."

Wally grinned and tousled the little chap's head.

"My head seems to have a sort of fascination for you, eh, Mr. Mason?" asked Bob, looking up at his new friend.

"Well, yes," said Wally. "I think I'd call it that. A sort of fascination. Fact is, Robert," and he looked across Bob's head at Mary, "fact is, that all—uh—most red heads do have a fascination for me. Would you attribute it to the fact that mine own shock is so nondescript?" And he waited anxiously for young Robert's reply to that. "Would you attribute it to that?"

"I should think that would be highly probable, Mr. Mason."

"Oh, Bob, you funny infant!" The mist seemed to gently eddy in Mary's eyes. "How mother would have loved you, young Robert!"

Dusk had sifted down, had settled gently on tree and walk when they stopped before the small green cottage at the end of the street. "This is home," said Robert. "Good-bye, Mr. Mason." They shook hands gravely. "I hope Mary will ask you to come again."

"Oh, Robert!"

"He does want to come, Mary. I know he does!"

"I do, young Bob. I want to come

"I should like to come again and talk to you—" had hurt Mary's insides. Now she called it her Soul. Thus, With the large S. Before that it had been her insides. "My insides hurt, mother, when you come home tired with the lines on your face." There had been so many lines. Mary learned to watch for the new ones. She had learned to sit on mother's lap and smooth them out. Their ugliness repelled her. She had cried, "They're ugly, mother."

"Baby!"

Soft little fingers pressing them out. But they wouldn't leave. A thin network of furrows on forehead, and about the pale eyes, and the parenthesis about the mouth worming in more and more deeply.

"I'm just tired, Baby. Mother's not ill. Just tired."

"You're always tired, mother. Baby wants to play," and young David bundling her unceremoniously away and sitting her in a corner with the tennis balls that rolled about so merrily. Tennis balls and mother. Irrevocably bound together. Mother sewed them. Hundreds of them. Boxes of tennis balls stacked high in the living room, and beneath the desk, and behind the clothes tree in the hall. "I can't go, sweetheart. You go. You go and take David. Mother has to sew."

Tennis balls and mother. Tennis balls and Mary, but with what a difference. The sunlight and freedom of the courts for Mary, with the balls already sewn. "Mother sewed her life away that I might have my heritage of sunshine, and I shall take all of it, oh, all of it!"

What are you going to do with life, Mary?

"I shall fashion it and shape it to suit my ends. Life will be as wax in my hands, and I will wrench from it the key of the sluices that will pour gold into my lap, gold enough in payment for mother. That is what I am going to do with life."

And the flood of ghostly moonlight promised her silver, too, those nights when Mary mused upon her destiny which was to be molded by her own firm, tanned fingers.

That was the lit of Mary's walk. All that, you see. And what Wally Mason read into the elastic tread was tennis. Well, tennis for those again more than anything else on earth."

"Funny," thought Bob, "that Mr. Mason talks to me and looks at Mary!" He said good-bye again and begged Mr. Mason to excuse him, but he hadn't seen his cat since early that afternoon, and he thought he'd better find out if everything had gone well while he was away.

Mary and Wally Mason were left alone. There was nothing more beautiful in the world, Wally knew, than Mary's head against the back-ground of the high green hedge.

"Miss Mary?"

"Yes, Mr. Mason?" Her eyes were so sweet when they looked at a fellow with that swimming green sea mistiness. "I should like to come again and talk to you—"

It was good to look down into her eyes and know that their frankness was equalled in his.

"I should like to have you—"

"Say Wally!" he pleaded, looking very boyish. A lock of the nondescript hair fell across his forehead, and he brushed it impatiently away. It obstructed the view of her eyes.

"Why—"

A faint flush glowed beneath the firm tan of her cheeks.

"Why—of course, Wally. And there wasn't a hint of coquetry in the smile she gave him.

Now the words rushed forth. Almost like Robert, thought Mary, young man with the nondescript shock of hair and the very eager blue eyes. He had just come to Garden City. He was a reporter on the Daily Herald. He boarded at the Garden City House. He was alone. He was lonely. He had discovered some lovely walks. They could read. Did she like poetry? Rupert Brooke? No, really, she did? What a find! Then they would—? Oh, Lord! What a fortunate break to have been given the tennis tournament assignment! Oh, Lord! Life was rich! Life was good! And he left with the mental picture of the gold of Mary's head and the green of her eyes and the misty way in which they looked at one.

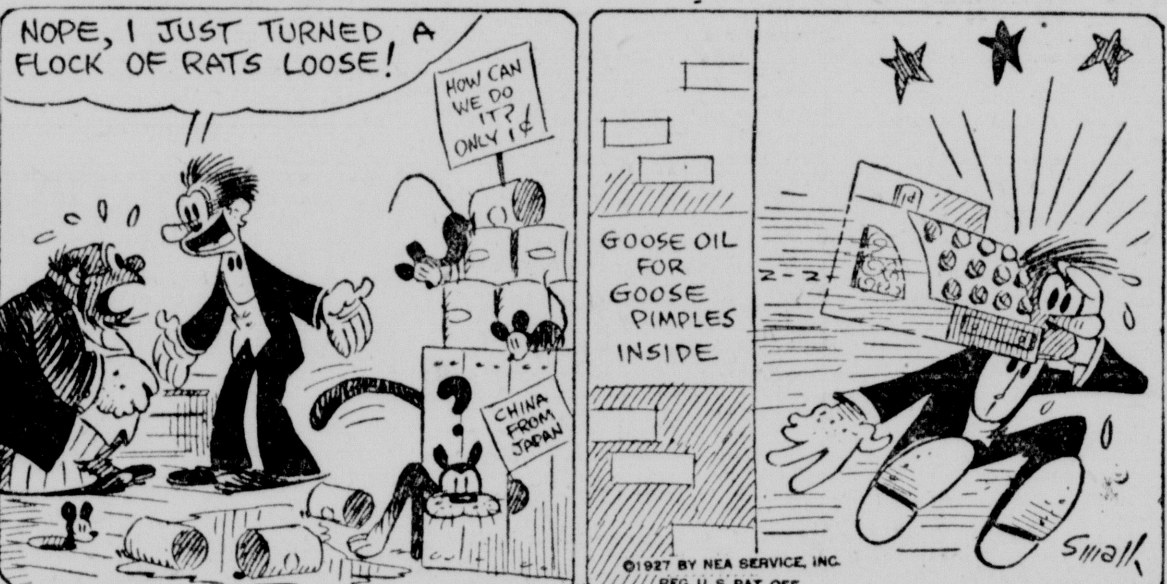

As for Mary, yes, Life was good she thought.

SORTA FUN.

There's a certain joy in sheer physical exhaustion, too, that we office workers get so little of! We get fagged in mind, yes. But we don't get our muscles into such a state of tiredness that they throb. And just because we don't, neither do we get the thrill of eating a dinner when we are so tired we almost go to sleep over the baked potato, nor the thrill of a warm bath with bath salts doing everything within their power to make us forget the dirt in which we have delved all day. Then the thrill, like no other, of an hour or so to read in bed, dead tired, utterly relaxed in cool sheets—well, that's the way one feels after just an occasional day of it. But here's announcing to one and sundry that if I did it six days a week I'd be paid more than my "keep," as so many women are, or know the reason why!

To the troubadour of old, we are indebted for most of our knowledge of the customs and thought of Medieval Europe. His songs, 2500 of them, have been preserved. They deal with drama, romance and fable.

MONEY TO LOAN

QUICK LOANS

$10 to $300

This company is operated UNDER THE SUPERVISION OF THE STATE OF ILLINOIS and provides a place where you can borrow $10 to $300 in a dignified business like manner without paying more than the legal rate of interest. We do not need you in any way. We do not need your employer, neither do we make inquiries of friends, relatives or neighbors. Simply address our company and we will send you a check for the amount you need.

OF course, Billy mused, the agreement which the gods had signed had specifically stated that they were not to marry during the year. But an engagement was not a marriage.

Billy shrugged and gave it up as a hopeless puzzle. She took her violin and began to practice the scales to which Navratil had sentenced her.

She had played for only five minutes when Mrs. Meadows, in a purple silk negligee, knocked at her door and sweetly asked:

"So sorry to interrupt you, my dear, but would you mind practicing in the music room downstairs? I always take an afternoon nap, and since my room is just across the hall from yours—" She paused, delicately, with uplifted brows and an ingratiating but somehow unfriendly smile in her faded eyes.

"Certainly, I'm so sorry I disturbed you," Billy apologized.

"About the dance tonight, dear girl," Mrs. Meadows stepped into the room, shut the door and lowered her voice confidentially. "As an artist, a person of very great talent, you will undoubtedly be asked into homes that will not welcome a girl like you. They are dear girls, of course, but not—quite—"

SALESMEN WANTED

WANTED—An Illinois company established since 1905 desires to communicate with men and women whose character is above reproach, and who are in mind as a career, entering the selling profession. Our policies are exceedingly attractive from the buyer's standpoint. A child age 1 is insured for $1,000 under a graded policy, at a premium of $17.33 on the 20 day life plan. The premium at age 5 is $18.64 per $1,000. A premium waiver cancels all future premiums if original beneficiary dies. Premiums at other ages in proportion, our rate on the semi-endowment at age 7 plan is $50.45 per $1,000. These rates compare favorably with any of the old line companies, and are considerably better than some. If you are not an experienced salesman or saleswoman do not let this hinder you from communicating with us, as we have an efficient department of instruction. If you want to affiliate yourself with a leading Illinois company, where your future is determined by what you accomplish, write the home office. The Peoples Life Insurance Company of Illinois, 130 N. Wells St., Chicago, Ill. A home office representative is now in the territory. 3813

THIS HAS HAPPENED

T. Q. CURTIS, millionaire department store owner, selects three girls from his establishment—BILLY WELLS, NYDA LOMAX and WINNIE SHELTON—to come into his home as his wards for one year because he believes they have worthy ambitions.

BILLY WELLS, who wants to become a concert violinist, is the only one of the three who is serious. The others like, thereby winning the advantage of his home, wealth and position for the year.

MRS. MEADOWS, widow of a former governor, is acting hostess for the girls. Her nephew, DAL ROMANINE, a fascinating man of Oriental appearance, is cleverly "playing up" to all three of the girls, much to the disgust of Billy, who is infatuated with him.

When Billy returns to her mother's home for a visit, she is asked by its plainness.

CLAY CURTIS, one of the store owner, has disinherited himself and is living with the Wells family in the poor section of the working class in the Tremont automobile factory in the daytime and writing music at night. Billy is discouraged. He encourages PRINCE NAVRATIL, tells her she will have to work hard five years before she can attain her goal.

At the luncheon table, Billy learns that Dal and Winnie Shelton are going skating. When Dal includes her and Nyda in the invitation, both refuse, though Billy is tempted with the knowledge that Winnie will have Dal to herself.

Billy learns she is the only one of the three girls invited to the Bradleys to a dance. Ralph Truman asks her to go.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXV

WHEN Billy went to her room to change the autumn leaf evening dress for an afternoon frock, she was reminded by the telephone on her dark walnut secretary that she should telephone her mother.

The added report of Navratil on her playing that T. Q. had passed on to her. She lifted the receiver of the phone—it was an extension—and was startled to hear Nyda's voice sharp and angry, rapping out a peremptory command. "Now, listen, Eddie, I've told you not to call me here. I'll meet you like I promised—"

Billy replaced the receiver as noiselessly as possible. So Winnie had been right. Nyda was going out with Hanning. But why did she want to lie about it? T. Q. had made it very plain that the chauffeur would be welcomed in his home as a sweetheart of Nyda's.

And Nyda must certainly have been engaged to Eddie Hanning. Why everyone in the house knew that.

Of course, Billy mused, the agreement which the gods had signed had specifically stated that they were not to marry during the year. But an engagement was not a marriage.

Billy shrugged and gave it up as a hopeless puzzle. She took her violin and began to practice the scales to which Navratil had sentenced her.

She had played for only five minutes when Mrs. Meadows, in a purple silk negligee, knocked at her door and sweetly asked:

"So sorry to interrupt you, my dear, but would you mind practicing in the music room downstairs? I always take an afternoon nap, and since my room is just across the hall from yours—" She paused, delicately, with uplifted brows and an ingratiating but somehow unfriendly smile in her faded eyes.

FRANKLIN GROVE NEWS NOTES

Franklin Grove—This community was shocked early Friday morning when the word was passed from one to another that Will Watson had committed suicide during the night.

For a number of years Will had complained of being in poor health, but continued to work when he could secure work. Monday he complained of feeling worse than usual, having an affliction strike him the night before which affected his speech, and which he thought was a stroke. He obtained medicine from a physician and continued to work, having planned many jobs to do during the spring and summer months. It is thought by friends that possibly another severe attack of illness caused him to commit the dreadful act. His body, rigid in death, was found Friday morning by his brother John, hanging by a rope from a rafter in the kitchen of his home where he resided alone. The lamp was still burning in the room. Dr. F. M. Barker was immediately summoned, and he at once cut the rope and let the body down finding that death had come several hours before. Corner Banker impounded a jury comprising F. D. Kelley, as foreman, F. H. Senger, C. E. Phillips, L. J. Miller, Wm. Hooley and George Zoeller. Their verdict was that death was caused by strangulation.

Billy, as he was familiarly called, was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Watson, both of whom preceded him in death. He was born in Franklin Grove, Ill., January 9, 1870, and died April 15, 1927, having attained the age of fifty-seven years, two months and twenty-nine days. His sister, Mary Elizabeth, with whom he had lived in the old homestead more than twenty years, expired February 1, 1923, and since that time the poor unfortunate fellow has lived alone. Of the eleven children in the Watson family, he was the tenth to die, one brother John of this place surviving. A nephew, Arthur Watson, and a grand nephew, Richard Raynor, both of whom are uncles and a good friend.

William was possessed of a good many good traits. He was ever willing to do a favor for a friend; he was honest—never wanting anything but his own; he was good natured, always a word of cheer for all; he was good, never known to do an injury to a friend. He will be greatly missed by a number of people for whom he worked most faithfully. Funeral services were held at his late home Sunday afternoon, Rev. L. V. Stiller of the Methodist church having charge of the services. The male quartet, comprising Rev. L. V. Stiller, F. J. Blocher, Charles Sunday and Bela Halderman, rendered two appropriate numbers. The pall bearers were: F. D. Kelley, C. E. Phillips, W. W. Phillips, H. H. Dyas, L. L. Durkes and F. H. Senger. Interment was made in the local cemetery.

Word was received recently by relatives here that Ralph Myers had died at a sanitarium in Des Moines, Iowa, and that burial was at Dysart, Iowa. Ralph was the son of Lewis Myers, formerly of this place, where Ralph grew to boyhood and attended the school at this place. He was a soldier of the World War where he contracted the disease which caused his death, April 5. Joseph Riddlebarger and Mrs. E. O. Orner are uncle and aunt of the deceased.

Miss Josephine Durkes, who is attending school at Normal, Ill., is enjoying the spring vacation at the home of her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Durkes.

The Aid society of the Methodist church will meet next Thursday afternoon April 21 at the home of Mrs. John Watson.

The Aid Society of the Presbyterian church will meet next Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Dan Miller.

The following cantata, "The Easter Victory" will be presented by the combined choirs of the Franklin Grove and Ashton Methodist churches Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the local church. The cantata is directed by Rev. Loyal V. Stiller, pastor of the church, with Mrs. W. L. Moore as accompanist. The following is the program:

Prelude—Mrs. W. L. Moore.
Dawn After Darkness—Opening chorus.
We Need Thee—Soprano and Tenor Duet—Mrs. Lloyd Attig and Dr. C. R. Root.

STOP BAD BREATH
People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.
Olive Tablets bring no griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.
Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.
Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c, 60c. All Druggists.

Mrs. Susan Breuninger is reported as seriously ill with heart trouble. Irving Boyd of Buckingham visited Sunday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Charles Baker.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Sidell and daughter Miss Hazel were visitors from Thursday until Sunday with relatives and friends in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Senger were in town and expects to be there this summer. Mrs. Daniel Miller was called to Chicago Tuesday night by the illness of her grand daughter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Miller, former residents of this place. Friends here are hoping to hear of the recovery of the little girl.

The Gypsy Rover, a musical comedy in three acts, is to be presented by the pupils of the high school, Friday and Saturday, April 22 and 23, at 8:00 p. m. in Lincoln hall with the following character caste:

Meg, an old Gypsy woman—Helen Spratt.
Zara, the belle of the Gypsy camp—Margaret Banker.
Marto, Meg's husband—Lowell Trottnow.
Sinfu, Gypsy lad, in love with Zara George Knouse.
Rob, the Gypsy rover, afterwards, Sir Gilbert Howe—Herman Schaffer.
Lady Constance, daughter of Sir Martindale—Pauline Trostle.
Lord Craven, a "don't-know"—English duke—Kenneth Gyssa.
Sir George Martindale, and English gentleman—Carl Sunday.
Nina, Sir George's second daughter—Gilda Graves.
Captain Jerome, of the English Army—Glenn Clutz.
Sir Tolly Lion, a society butterfly—Norman Tompkins.
McCorkle, a song publisher of London—Leo Gorman.

Chorus of high school students, six gypsy boys and girls (three each) from Mrs. Spangler's room. Song by Herman Schaffer, Pauline Trostle and Carl Sunday. Duets by Helen Spratt and Lowell Trottnow, Pauline Trostle and Herman Schaffer, Margaret Banker and George Knouse, Gilda Graves and Glenn Clutz, Lowell Trottnow and George Knouse. Final trio of Second act—Pauline Trostle, Herman Schaffer and Carl Sunday. The chorus sings several times, both alone and with the soloists. Between the various musical parts are several spoken passages taken by the cast as given.

Act I—A Gypsy camp near London.
Act II—A room in the home of Sir George.
Act III—Same as Act II.
Music under the direction of Mrs. George.

THE TELEPHONE INDUSTRY

On March 10, 1876, the first telephone message was transmitted over electrified wires. This incident marked the birth of the Telephone Industry.

An industry which, for rapidity of growth, has never been equalled in the business world.

An industry which has proven to be the greatest economic factor ever introduced into the business life of the world.

An industry which has grown, in fifty short years, to be the second largest industry in the world.

An industry without which it would be impossible to handle more than one-third of the business of the world today.

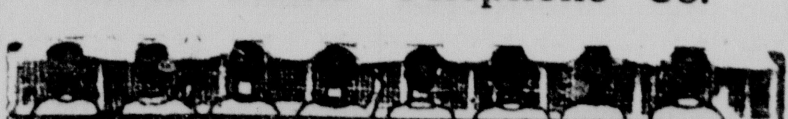

An industry which, after fifty years, is probably the least understood by the general public throughout the world today.

COOKING SCHOOL ECHOES

Chicken Croquettes

A Tested Recipe

2 cups chopped cold chicken 2 tablespoons water
2 tablespoons finely chopped 1 egg celery 1 cup very thick white
Few grains nutmeg sauce
¼ cup fine bread crumbs

Put chicken through meat grinder. Add celery, nutmeg and mix well. Season more if necessary. Chill. Form into croquettes or cutlets. Roll in crumbs, dip in slightly beaten egg diluted with water, and roll again in crumbs. Fry in deep hot Crisco (375 to 400 degrees F.) about 5 minutes. Drain on unglazed paper. (½ cup chopped cooked mushrooms may be added to this recipe if desired.)

WHITE SAUCE

2 tablespoons Crisco ½ teaspoon pepper
4 tablespoons flour 1 cup milk

Melt Crisco, add flour, salt and pepper and mix well. Add milk slowly and bring to the boiling point, stirring constantly to avoid lumping. Place over hot water until ready to use. (All measurements level)

In frying with Crisco, notice that Crisco never smokes or makes an unpleasant odor at proper frying temperature. Notice, too, how beautifully Crisco fries—the foods are crisp, golden brown outside; tender, digestible and well-cooked inside. And remember that Crisco alone meets your every need of a shortening and cooking fat. It is just the thing for light, tender cakes, fluffy biscuits, flaky pie crust and dainty desserts.

To test your cooking fat—taste it. Crisco's sweet flavor will astonish you.

Board of Education to Give Andrews a Chance

Chicago, April 16—(AP)—William McAndrews will be asked to resign as superintendent of Chicago schools if it is found, as Mayor Thompson has charged, that pro-British and anti-American propaganda is being taught, the school board's newly chosen president, W. J. Raymer, said today.

On the other hand, if the charges are found untrue, the board will continue its support of Superintendent McAndrews, and will in the words of President Raymer, "fight to keep him in his position even though the mayor is determined to oust him."

It is the McAndrews administration of the schools that gave rise to Mayor Thompson's "King George" charges during his campaign.
